EDITORIAL

Education has often been taken to mean living and growing and it is precisely a glimpse of this life and growth of our alma mater that we attempt to present in this magazine.

Life in Raimondi has always been fascinating, with the big school population and the multifarious curricular and extracurricular activities in harmonious relation. It is no platitude to say that studying in Raimondi is like living in a happy big family.

The growth of Raimondi in many aspects has been constant and steady. This year, in line with government expansion of secondary education and implementation of Stage II subvention to assisted private schools, our college has opened two additional Form 1 classes, making a total of seven, for the secondary school entrants.

On the academic side, a new Art Room and separate libraries for individual classes have been installed. In the HKCEE 1976, our Raimondians achieved unprecedented good results. We are happy to learn, too, that many past Raimondians are doing equally well here and abroad.

In extracurricular activities, our schoolmates have made great strides. They have successfully organised not only intraschool but interschool projects which won special prizes and acclaim.

However, physical and intellectual growth must be balanced by spiritual development. To this end, apart from regular lessons on ethics and religious knowledge and religious activities, we have a new school chaplain to look after our spiritual affairs.

Should Raimondi achieve any success, it must ultimately be attributed to all her friends, in particular the PTA, who have given her generous support and constant encouragement. To show these friends our gratituted which words alone will not suffice to express, we dedicate this issue of The Raimondian, with the hope that it can evoke memories of pleasant association with Raimondia.

Speech by Hon. Mr. Justice T.L. Yang Guest of Honour, at the 16th Speech Day at Karl's Hall on 2nd December, 1976

It is with great pleasure that my wife and I have come here to offer to the graduating students our personal congratulations, and we wish you a happy and meaningful future, and that you will find satisfaction in all your legitimate pursuits.

The topic of my address today is: "What are the Facts?"

In the course of our lives, there are bound to be numerous occasions when we have to form judgments on other people's character and conduct. And for most of us, we not infrequently make up our minds without being in possession of all the relevant facts. Let me give an example.

Imagine that you perceive a man (whom we shall call Mr. A) standing in a room with a blood-stained knife in his hand. Lying on the floor in front of him is a dead man, whom we shall call Mr. B. Your initial conclusion, I dare say, would be that Mr. A has just murdered Mr. B. Further reflection, however, will tell you that appearances and first impressions are often deceptive. In the present hypothetical case, it is not impossible that some third person has killed Mr. B, and that Mr. A enters the room after the killer has escaped. Perhaps in a desperate attempt to save Mr. B, Mr. A pulls the knife out of his body, at which moment you come into the room and catch him in this compromising situation. But let us suppose that from your examination of the case, you come to the conclusion that Mr. A did kill Mr. B, or perhaps he confesses to you that he has killed the deceased. Your impression may then be: "Ah, I have caught the murderer!" But that could be wrong too, for Mr. A might have killed Mr. B in self-defence, in which case Mr. A is not guilty of any crime whatsoever. Even if your investigations reveal that Mr. B had attacked Mr. A, and that Mr. A in trying to protect himself killed Mr. B, these bare facts are by themselves insufficient to establish self-defence. In law, the degree of force used in self-defence must be proportionate to the force used by the attacker. Some attacks may be serious and dangerous. Others may not be. If there is some relatively minor attack it would not be open to the person attacked to resort to such act of retaliation which is wholly out of proportion to the necessities of the situation. Assuming that in the present example, Mr. B simply hit Mr. A with his fists, the use of a knife, even for self-protection, may well be regarded as excessive force, so that the killing is not entirely innocent. In those circumstances Mr. A would be guilty, not of murder, but of the lesser crime of manslaughter.

The example I have just given illustrates how dangerous it is to formulate an opinion when one does not have enough facts. Until one knows the facts, he is in no position to pass judgment, and he cannot know the true facts until he has heard all sides. Unfortunately however, having heard all sides, he may still not get the truth, because the accounts presented may be incorrect or incomplete, or, he himself may be so biased against one side and in favour of the other that he is unable to form an impartial and objective decision.

We are all guilty of making hasty judgments at one time or another: Judgments based not on facts, but on our own prejudices, and on fragmented and unreliable evidence. Small wonder that conflicts, misunderstandings and ill-feelings abound. Admittedly, it is often extremely difficult to discover the facts, but in order to obtain the truth we must endeavour to do so. My message to you, then, is simply this: Keep an open mind, and suspend judgment until you have assembled all the relevant facts. This principle holds true whether you are dealing with an individual, a company, an association, or a government department.

That you should gather all the relevant facts is easier said than done. People may lie, documents may lie, and photographs, films and tapes may be doctored so as to present a false picture. Perhaps I may be permitted to point out a few of the pitfalls you should guard yourselves against in your search for facts. If a person tells you something, inaccuracies may occur for a variety of reasons. The one reason that comes readily to mind is of course a deliberate lie. And a lie, if repeated often enough, or with sufficient authority, may take on the aura of truth and be accepted as such. On the other hand, a story may be partly true and partly false, or it may be incomplete, so that while the part which is revealed is true, the other part that is concealed, if discovered, will throw a completely different light on the story. Alternatively, a person may tell you a falsehood unintentionally because of his defective memory or observation, his ignorance and lack of knowledge, or because of an inability to express himself clearly and correctly. It is but human nature to exaggerate that which is favourable to ourselves and our friends and damaging to those who are on the opposite side. We all tend to forgive or explain away our own wrongdoings, or the wrongdoings of our friends, and blame our enemies for whatever they may say or do. Apart from the inaccuracies you have heard or read, your own observation may be wrong too. In a classic example, several persons enacted a scene in front of a class. At the end of it each student was asked to tell what he had witnessed. Quite different versions were related by the students, though they all saw the same thing at the same time.

Remember, too, that a fact may be susceptible to more than one interpretation. If you are sick and I fail to visit you, it may be that I am not concerned about you, or because I am sick too, or because I do not know that you are sick, or because your doctor advised against visitors. If there is already some misunderstanding between us, you are likely to think that I do not care about you. If you and I are on good terms, you will probably assume that I have some good reasons for not visiting you. Both assumptions are based on insufficient evidence and may be incorrect.

Through laziness, we all too quickly accept what is told or revealed to us at its face value, thereby forming an opinion based on unreliable formation. Through laziness too, we may even adopt other people's conclusions and their prejudices as well.

Suppose you succeeded in avoiding all the pitfalls I have enumerated, then, having marshalled and correlated all the facts obtainable, you are in a good position to form your own judgment. It is not uncommon that the possession of all available evidence still leaves certain crucial questions unanswered, in which case you should accept the inevitable and only conclusion, frustrating though it is, and resign yourself to the fact that you do not know what the truth is. Sometimes you may be fortunate enough to form a judgment on the facts, but even then, it does not follow that judgment will remain permanently valid, because new facts may emerge or be unearthed, emphasis may be shifted, and mistakes in your finding of facts may be discovered. In that event, you should review your judgment, approach the problem with a fresh outlook and an open mind, and have the courage to admit that you have been wrong and change your judgment accordingly.

As I see it, a lot of human conflicts are attributable to our failure to conscientiously gather the relevant facts. We criticize and condemn without being in possession of all the evidence. We tend to fill the gaps in the facts not with logical inferences or more facts but with preconceived ideas, prejudices, speculations, and falsehoods. To overcome these obstacles to your search of truth, you may well have to change your mental attitudes and methods. I therefore repeat this exhortation: Keep an open mind, and suspend judgment until you have got all the relevant facts.

Thank you.

Speech of Fr. J. Carra, P. I. M. E., our Supervisor

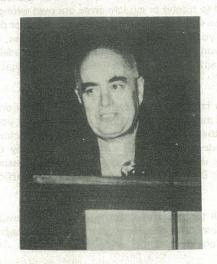

In his encyclical letter titled 'Peace on Earth,' the late Pope John XXIII proclaimed that man 'has a natural right to share in the benefits of culture, and hence to receive a good general education 'This should be the general principle upon which all governments should base their educational policies. What has the Hong Kong Government done over the years to provide education for all? Up until recently, it has dragged its feet in tackling this problem. It is heartening to note that in the present decade, Government has finally awakened to the fact that it must provide a good general education for all.

The White Paper on 'Secondary Education in Hong Kong over the Next Decade' issued in 1974 stated that there would be 100% subsidized secondary school places for Forms 1–3 and 40%, for Forms 4 and 5, by September, 1979. To achieve this target, the Education Department has started a school building programme that will bring into existence 83 new secondary schools between April, 1976 and September, 1981.

As a temporary measure to increase quickly the number of subsidised places, the Education Department has also introduced flotation and extended day classes in Government and aided schools. In addition, it is buying more places in the private secondary schools. All these moves are commendable, but more could be done.

Why should there be only 40% subsidised places for Forms 4 and 5? Why not 100%? What are the prospects of a student who finishes Form 3 only? He can go on to Form 4 in a private school and pay much higher school fees. This is against the principles of social justice. Or, he can start working. But can industry absorb all the Form 3 schoolleavers? Besides, with their academic qualifications, they can do only unskilled work with low pay.

If Form 3 school-leavers cannot proceed to Form 4 nor can they get decent jobs, what does the future hold for them? They might come under the influence of criminal elements. Sooner or later, they will get into trouble with the law. Thus, by not preparing them adequately so that they can have a decent means of livelihood, Government is guilty of the sin of omission.

Moreover, with only 40% going up to Form 4, another public examination will have to be introduced to decide which Form 3 students will be promoted. In fact, a working party on the introduction of the Junior Certificate of Education Examination for students who have finished Form 3 is now being formed by the Education Department. If the students make it to Form 4, they will be faced with another public examination when they finish Form 5. Two public examinations within the short period of two years will put too much pressure on the students. For this reason, I am strongly against the introduction of a public examination after Form 3.

Finally, the opening of flotation and extended day classes is an added burden to school administrators and deprives the students of time and space for activities other than academic work. This could lead to the lowering of educational standards.

The best solution to the problem of providing general education for all is to speed up the school building programme. No doubt this will require a huge sum of money. For Government to be able to save money for education, I suggest three measures.

The first one is Government could implement the recommendation of the T.K. Ann Report to remove all existing Government primary schools 'from the direct control of the Education Department and each can be placed under an Individual School Management Committee.....' My second suggestion is more drastic than the first one. Disestablish all the government secondary schools and convert them into aided schools.

The disestablishment of government primary and secondary schools could save Government a great deal of money. Needless to say, running a non-government school is much less expensive than running a government school.

I said earlier that Government was buying more and more places in secondary schools. I would suggest that the number of 'bought places' be increased drastically. This way Government could again save money because a 'bought place' costs only $280 per pupil per annum. This is much less than what it has to spend on a government school place or a subsidised place.

Besides the speeding up of the school building programme, Government should continue to convert under-utilised government primary schools into secondary schools. The earlier we reach the target of providing subsidised education for all, the better it will be for all of us in this community. Nobody can deny that the key to the solution of most of our current social problems lies in education.

Now, I would like to address myself to the 1976 Form 7 and Form 5 graduates of this College. Congratulations to you on your fine performance in the public examinations. Special mention should be made of you, Form 5 graduates. You turned out to be the best batch of Certificate of Education Examination candidates that we have had so far. The top student obtained 6 distinctions and 3 B grade credits while the next best one obtained also 6 distinctions and 3 C grade credits. Much of the credit for the extremely good examination results of your class goes to your teachers, both in the primary and secondary sections, who painstakingly and unselfishly nurtured you and moulded you into what you are today.

For those of you who have left us, remember and apply all the principles that you have learned during your stay with us. I realise that it is difficult to stick to one's principles. People tend to sacrifice principles in favour of the easy way out, in favour of conformity. But keep on trying. Emulate the martyrs of our Church who died for their faith and their convictions.

Before I close this evening, I would like to pay special tribute to a man who, until he died recently, had been a long-standing friend and benefactor of Raimondi College — Mr. Eugene Li Yiu Bor. His passing away was a great loss to the school and a great personal loss for me. To honour and perpetuate his memory, the school management has decided to name the Language Lab in our extension building the Li Yiu Bor Language Laboratory.

IN MEMORIAM

Mr. Eugene Li Yiu-bor, O.B.E., J.P., who passed away on 6th September, 1976.

Born in 1909, Mr. Li had devoted his whole life to promoting education, social welfare and Church work in Hong Kong.

To our college, Mr. Li had given his never-failing help, notably by granting annual scholarships to needy students of both our primary and secondary sections. He had been Chairman of our Form Six Building Fund-raising Committee and the generous donor of the Form Six Physics Laboratory.

His death is a great loss to our school and our community at large; but his philanthropy will live forever and serve as an instructive example.

May his soul rest in peace!

Hong Kong Red Cross Head Anne Black Building Harcourt Road

28th March 1977.

Mr. A. C. Morales, Principal, Raimondi College, 2 Robinson Road, HONG KONG.

Dear Mr. Morales,

May we give our warmest thanks to you and your students for the wonderful response we had when our blood collection team visited you. We collected a marve..ous intel of 170 donations for which the haspitel service is truly indebted.

unations for which the hespital service is truly indebted. If we could always find the same willingness to help others which we find in Raimondi Colleys there would be no shortage of blood in Hong Kong. Indeed it is heartwarming to see such a generous spirit and I hope that all those who gave will be rewarded by the knowledge that someone in hospital has been helped book to normal life by their gift. And of course we do volue the willingness of the 15 students who volunteered to give but were unable to do so for various reasons.

We send our best wishes to all those who will be sitting for their examinations this year and we sincerely hope that they will continue to donate in their future career or continuing education. I am enclosing a list of the names of the donors which we hope can be displayed prominently for public recognition of their generous response to our hospitals.

Yours aincerely,

Wrs. R. Froser

School Mass at the Cathedral

'SHARING OF LOVE' — You're not alone. Just look around you, you have your brothers who need your love.

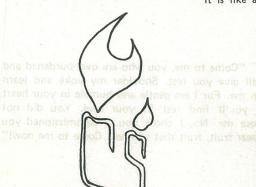

"Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them."

(Mt. 18:20)

It is like a family gathering.

Do you believe in love?

"Yes, at last we realize our oneness. We are members of one family . . . "

"Come to me, you who are over-burdened and I will give you rest. Shoulder my yoke and learn from me. For I am gentle and humble in your heart and you'll find rest in your soul. You did not choose me. No, I chose you. I commissioned you to bear fruit, fruit that will last. Come to me now!"

"You must love one another just as I love you. You must repent and be baptized in the name of me and have the forgiveness of your sin."

LEGIO MARIAE

Follow her,

Invoking her,

Thinking of her,

Upheld by her,

Shielded by her,

Guided by her,

Favoured by her,

thou despairest not;

thou strayest not;

thou wanderest not;

thou fallest not;

thou fearest not;

thou growest not weary;

thou reachest the goal.

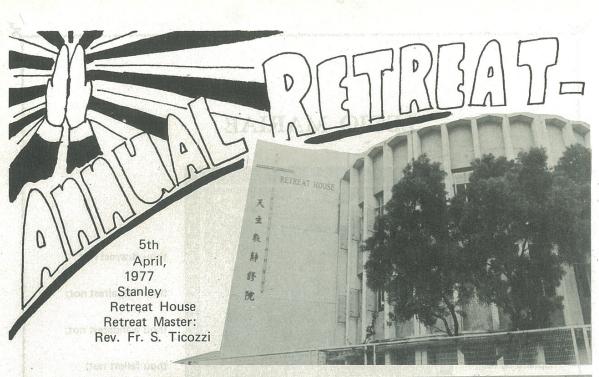

"Mary, the Humblest Handmaid" and "Our Lady of Fatima" are two Legionary Praesidia attached to both our college and the Cathedral. Many of their active members form the core of Katso in Raimondi.

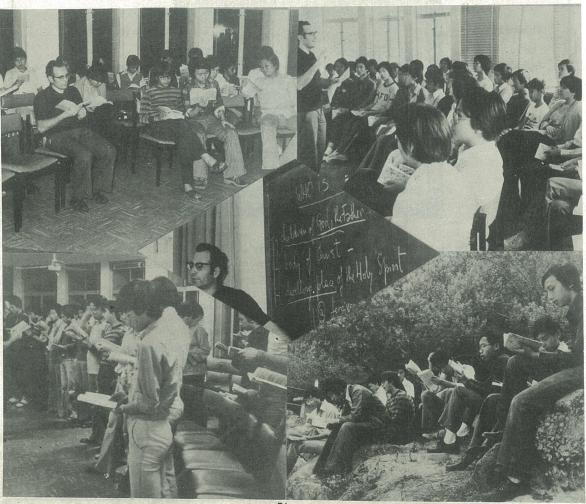

Their ultimate goal is to follow the virtuous example of Our Lady's chastity, forebearance, humility and self-sacrificial love of God.

The members undertake weekly charitable work such as visits to hospitals and homes for the aged, helping others in trouble and organising Bible classes.

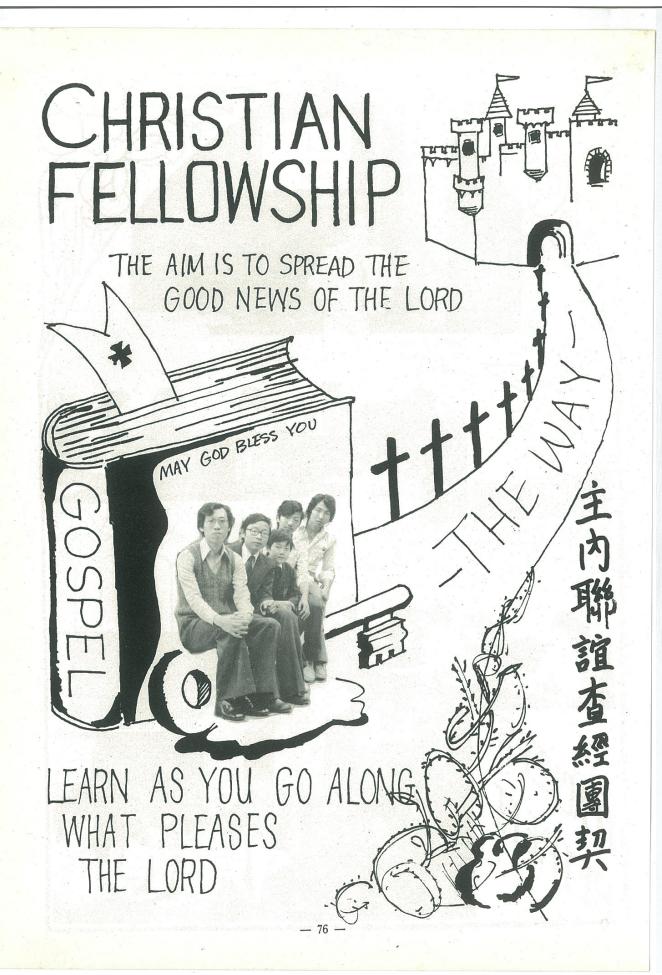

It is hoped that all Catholics will join our legion in proclaiming the Good News from God.

MY MOTHER

My mother is a short woman of about forty years old. She always wears a pair of sunglasses because her eyes were once hurt by boiling water. Her face is as pale as a sheet and her hair, short and straight, is combed in an old-fashioned style. How ugly she is! Seldom do I talk to her nor do I want my classmates and friends to know that she is my mother.

One rainy day in winter I forgot to take my umbrella and I thought I would get all wet after school. Looking through the classroom window I saw a woman standing near the school gate. She was trembling in the wind. Then I discovered that the woman was my mother. I was very angry because her ugliness would make my classmates laught at me. I could not make up my mind whether I should go to meet her or not.

The bell rang and I rushed out of the school to see if she was still there. I saw her still shivering and waiting patiently in the rain. Suddenly I realized how kind she was and what a good mother too. I was so ashamed of myself that tears came to my eyes. I could not help running to her and said. "Mother, are you cold?" She answered in a low voice. "No, but it is raining heavily. Let's go home before you get all wet." Arm in arm I walked home with her.

Autumn

Now autumn is approaching and summer has gone.

Many people like autumn. They think that it is the best season in the year.

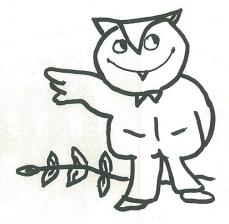

The weather in autumn is nice. It is neither too hot nor too cold. We can feel a little bit cold, but just a little bit.

The sky is always clear and the heat of the sun does not make people sweat. It seldom rains. It is good for us to go on picnic.

Plants, flowers and grass begin to wither. Heaps of leaves can be seen under the trees.

Insects are not so busy because they have already collected the food for winter. Farmers are busy because they have to harvest and thresh the crops.

IN THE ZOO

Mr. and Mrs. Chan are bringing Wing Hong and Wai Ying to the zoo. There are many animals in the zoo. They are standing in front of a cage. Some monkeys are playing in the cage happily. They are looking at the fierce lions. Mary is afraid of the fierce lions so she is standing behind her mother. An old elephant is walking on the path. Some children are sitting on the old elephant's back. Wing Hong and Wai Ying are sitting on the elephant's back now. They are waving to their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Chan are sitting on a bench.

一場緊張激烈的辯論比賽便告開始。 文辯論決賽正式開始。我校同學不負衆望,也擠身成爲決賽兩勁旅之一。 一陣鈴聲過後,整個禮堂都進入了寂靜的階段。主席接著宣佈校際中

冬天的早晨

中一 李萬寬

們刮著,令他們無從招架。

一覺醒來,又是一天的開始,真是有些不願離開暖暖的被窩;可是又好路程。途中,看到一些衣衫襤褸的人,縮作一團的睡在街頭,而上天又好路程。途中,看到一些衣衫襤褸的人,縮作一團的睡在街頭,而上天又好路程。途中,看到一些衣衫襤褸的人,縮作一團的睡在街頭,而上天又好路是到,只好懶洋洋地進入洗手間梳洗。隨著我便穿上校服,踏上回校的路建到,只是他們無從招架。

寒風的吹襲,我想那種滋味一定是非常難受的。 執掃帚,正在進行清潔道路工作。清道夫每天清早便開始工作,而且受到轉入了另一條街道,我看見一個清道夫,他穿上一套黃色的制服,手

分派。我們起牀時,他們早已工作了一段時期。這是是是是一個人的人。我們起牀時,他們為了生活,也像清道夫一樣,清早起來,把報紙整理

辛苦極了!我真希望冬天快些過去哩! 在冬天的早晨中,許多人都受到寒風的影響,他們在街頭工作,真是

被表面的掩飾所蒙蔽,這就是所謂「知人口面不知心」。 人格的好與壞,並不能從表面上的觀察來作出判斷,須知人們往往會

暗裏却是走私販毒,開賭營娼,無惡不作,賺其見不得光的錢。他們在沽 實只不過是一些下流的無賴! 下卻是吃人肉、飲人血的魔鬼。一般人就以爲他們是人格高尚的好人,其 名釣譽中所花去的錢,只不過是九牛一毛吧了。他們名爲慈善家,但私底 不遺餘力的去支持,滿口仁義道德,待人和藹可親,謙恭禮讓;可是他們 就以社會上的一些名流、大慈善家爲例、他們表面上對社會公益事業

格是何等的偉大和高尚啊! 如荊軻與高漸離爲救蒼生,不怕困難而去刺殺秦王,慷慨捐軀,他們的人 挺身而出,扶弱救困,爲國爲民,這就是所謂「仗義每多屠狗輩」。正 一些身份卑微、工作下賤而往往被人輕視的人,他們每每在危難之中

到批評。 例,她們被人批評是毫無人格的人,而且還受到歧視。其實她們當中有不 少是爲勢所逼的,不宜苛責;反之那些以金錢玩弄女性的人才真正應該受 對於人格的批評,有些人會因爲偏見而不能作出中肯的評論。就以娼妓爲
